A TIGER IN TÜRKİYE?

Many people are surprised when they hear this, but tigers lived in Türkiye in the past! They were Caspian tigers, and they lived in the forests and near the rivers of eastern and southeastern Anatolia. They were enormous cats with thick fur, and they usually hunted wild boars and deer. So, why are there no tigers in Türkiye today? There are a few reasons. First, people were afraid of them, so they hunted them. Some hunters also killed them for their beautiful fur. Second, people cut down forests and built farms, so the tigers lost their habitat and their prey. The last Caspian tigers in Türkiye disappeared in the 1970s, and today scientists say the Caspian tiger is extinct.

We can’t bring the Caspian tiger back, but we can protect other animals. We should protect forests, and we shouldn’t buy products made from wild animals. We should also support national parks, because they are safe homes for wildlife.
