My grandmother Fatma lives with us in Mardin. She is seventy years old, but she looks younger. She is short and a bit plump, and she wears a colourful headscarf. She has kind brown eyes and a big smile.

Grandma is the most patient person in our house. She is more patient than my mother because she never gets angry when I make mistakes. She is also very honest; she always tells the truth, even when it is hard. Every evening she tells stories about her childhood, so my little sister and I sit next to her and listen. Some people think old people are boring, but my grandma is funnier than all my friends! She is easy-going and she laughs a lot. I want to be like her when I grow up.
