> At our school science fair, the 8th graders built a “fortune machine”. You press a button, the machine makes funny noises, and then it gives you a small card with a prediction. My card said, “You will become a famous scientist and you will receive a big prize.” I laughed, because I want to be a pilot, not a scientist! I don’t believe everything on the card, but it was fun. My friend Melis got a card that said, “You will travel to many countries.” She was very happy, because she dreams of seeing Japan. The 8th graders made the machine from an old printer and a small computer. What a clever trick!
