Last summer, my pen friend Aiko visited Türkiye from Japan. She stayed with us in Gaziantep for a week. Her first experience of Turkish cuisine was amazing. She tasted lahmacun at a food stall and loved the crispy bread. Then she tried a very spicy kebab. She wanted a lot of water after it! My mother cooked baklava for her, and Aiko watched her carefully. On the last day, we visited a traditional bazaar. Aiko didn't like the sour pickles, but she enjoyed everything else. She smiled and thanked us for the delicious week.
