17. Two years ago, there was an empty, dirty area at the end of Lale Street. The residents were unhappy about it, so they decided to do something. With the help of a few volunteers, they cleaned the area and turned it into a community garden. Now neighbours grow tomatoes, peppers and flowers there and take turns watering the plants. On Saturdays, retired teachers show children how plants grow. People who didn’t even say hello to each other before have become good friends. “The garden has brought our street together,” says one resident.
