> More and more people around the world are moving to cities. To deal with problems like traffic, pollution and waste, some cities are becoming “smart cities”. A smart city uses technology to make life easier and greener. For example, smart rubbish bins send a message to workers when they are full, so trucks don’t drive around for nothing. Street lights become brighter only when someone walks or drives past, which saves energy. Apps show people when the next bus will arrive. However, these systems collect a lot of data, so cities must make sure people’s personal information is protected.

1. What is a “smart city” according to the text?

   a) A city that uses technology to solve problems

   b) A city with many universities

   c) A very old city

   d) A city without cars

2. How do smart bins help the city?

   a) They recycle plastic themselves.

   b) They tell workers when they are full.

   c) They clean the streets.

   d) They produce electricity.

3. What do the street lights do?

   a) They change colour at night.

   b) They play music.

   c) They become brighter only when someone is near.

   d) They stay on all day.

4. What is the writer’s concern about smart cities?

   a) They are too green.

   b) They have too many parks.

   c) They are not modern enough.

   d) People’s personal information must be protected.
