Read the passage and answer the questions. (Parçayı okuyun ve soruları cevaplayın.)

> In a small town on the Aegean coast, residents have found a creative way to help one another. They use a simple community website called the “Favour Bank”. Instead of paying money, people exchange time and skills. For example, a retired teacher might give an hour of maths tutoring and, in return, receive an hour of help with gardening from a university student. Every hour of help earns one “time credit”, no matter what kind of service is offered. Organisers say the system has done more than save people money: it has brought together neighbours who previously never spoke to each other. Elderly residents, in particular, say they feel less lonely now that they have regular visitors.

1. In the Favour Bank system, people ----.

   a) pay each other with money
   b) sell their old belongings
   c) only help elderly people
   d) exchange their time and skills
   e) work for the town council

2. According to the passage, one hour of help ----.

   a) is worth more if it involves teaching
   b) earns one time credit regardless of the service
   c) costs a small amount of money
   d) must be given by a professional
   e) is only available to students

3. The organisers believe the system’s most important benefit is that it ----.

   a) makes people rich
   b) teaches gardening skills
   c) reduces the number of visitors
   d) replaces schools
   e) has connected neighbours who didn’t know each other

4. It can be inferred that elderly residents ----.

   a) were lonelier before the Favour Bank started
   b) don’t like having visitors
   c) give maths lessons
   d) have stopped using the website
   e) prefer to pay with money
