> Every year, millions of tonnes of plastic go into our seas and oceans. Plastic bags, bottles and straws are everywhere. The big problem is that plastic doesn't disappear. It breaks into very small pieces, but it stays in the water for hundreds of years. Sea animals are in danger because of this. Some turtles eat plastic bags because they look like jellyfish. Birds and fish sometimes get stuck in old fishing nets. What can we do? We can carry cloth bags when we go shopping. We can use glass or metal bottles instead of plastic ones. We can say no to plastic straws. We can also join beach clean-ups. Small changes in our daily lives can make a big difference for the oceans.
