> Last month, Class 8-A asked 100 students at their school about their internet habits. The results were interesting. 85 students go online every day. Most of them use the internet for watching videos and chatting with friends. Only 30 students use it for homework or research. 40 students said they sometimes stay online after midnight, and they often feel tired at school. Sadly, 12 students experienced cyberbullying, but only half of them told an adult. Now the class is preparing posters about online safety.
