> When Cemre was sixteen, she started making jewellery from recycled materials like old keys, bottle caps and broken glass. At first, it was just a way to relax after school. She posted photos of her work online, and soon people began asking if they could buy her pieces. Now, at twenty-one, she runs a small online shop and sells about two hundred pieces a month. “I never planned to start a business,” she says. “I’ve just been doing what I love.” Her advice for young people is simple: be patient, keep practising, and don’t be afraid to share your work with others.

1. What did Cemre use to make jewellery?

a) Gold and silver. b) Plastic beads. c) Wood. d) Recycled materials.

2. Why did she start making jewellery?
