D Leyla Sancar, the seed keeper

Read the text and answer the questions. (Metni okuyun ve soruları cevaplayın.)

> Leyla Sancar was born in 1948 in a farming village near Konya. As a child, she noticed that her grandmother saved seeds from the best plants every autumn. After she had finished her studies in agricultural engineering, Leyla realized that many old local varieties of wheat and vegetables were disappearing because farmers were buying modern seeds. In 1979, she began travelling from village to village, collecting traditional seeds and recording how they were grown. By the time she retired, she had collected more than 3,000 varieties. Today, her collection is kept in a seed bank, and young farmers still use it. Leyla once said, “A seed is a memory of the land.”
